Special Issue on Economic Reform, Regulation, Improvements and Impacts

Call for Papers

Economic reform comprises policies directed to achieve improvements in economic efficiency, either by eliminating or reducing distortions in individual sectors of the economy or by reforming economy-wide policies such as tax policy and competition policy with an emphasis on economic efficiency, rather than other goals such as equity or employment growth. Economic reform usually refers to deregulation, or at times to reduction in the size of government, to remove distortions caused by regulations or the presence of government, rather than new or increased regulations or government programs to reduce distortions caused by market failure.

The economics of regulation is the application of law by government or independent administrative agencies for various purposes, including remedying market failure, protecting the environment, centrally-planning an economy, enriching well-connected firms, or benefiting politicians.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Economic Reform, Regulation, Improvements and Impacts. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Financial crisis, structure and reform
- Economic reforms, growth and efficiency
- Market reform and regulation
- Corporate governance and reform
- Economic and financial regulation
- Business improvement
- Policy adjustment and optimal policy
- Promoting strategy and economic development

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Economic Reform, Regulation, Improvements and Impacts” should be chosen during your submission.
