Special Issue on High Risk Pregnancy

Call for Papers

High risk pregnancy is one of greater risk to the mother or her fetus than an uncomplicated pregnancy. Pregnancy places additional physical and emotional stress on a woman’s body. Health problems that occur before a woman becomes pregnant or during pregnancy may also increase the likelihood for a high-risk pregnancy.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on High Risk Pregnancy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Infections, diseases treatment in pregnancy
- Multiple pregnancy
- Pregnancy, preterm delivery and miscarriage
- Pregnancy complications
- Diabetic pregnancy
- Smoking and drinking in pregnancy
- Cancer therapy during pregnancy
- Relation between pregnancy risk and maternal age
- Down syndrome screening
- Preeclampsia

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – High Risk Pregnancy” should be chosen during your submission.
