Special Issue on Human Studies

Call for Papers

Human research is a discipline that proceeds from the consciousness of the humanities, maintains the depth of philosophical reflection and the fundamental concern for the humanistic spirit, and studies the human ontology and its relationship with the outside world. Whether in the field of science or philosophy, people's concern for themselves and the future has always been an important driving force for the development of the world and ideas.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring human studies. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Human ontology
- Human values
- Human rights
- Human and philosophy
- Perception and reason
- Human, technology and ethics
- Digital humanities
- Artificial intelligence and human future

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Human Studies” should be chosen during your submission.
