Special Issue on History of Philosophy

Call for Papers

Hegel said, “Philosophy is a summary of the history of philosophy, and the history of philosophy is the development of philosophy.” The study of philosophy history can be roughly divided into two directions, that is, the horizontal and longitudinal research of philosophy history. Horizontal research mostly refers to philosophy theory while longitudinal research refers to philosophy thought. In philosophy, the dialectics of the question itself is developed through the dialectics of philosophy's own history.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring history of philosophy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Philosophy history and social culture
- The development progress of philosophy
- Philosophical faction
- Philosophy theory
- History of western philosophy
- Research methods of philosophy history
- Philosophical thought and political evolution
- Compilation of philosophy history

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – History of Philosophy” should be chosen during your submission.
