

Special issue on Women health

Call for Papers

Women's health refers to health issues specific to human female anatomy. These often relate to structures such as female genitalia and breasts or to conditions caused by hormones specific to, or most notable in, females. Women's health issues include menstruation, contraception, maternal health, child birth, menopause and breast cancer. They can also include medical situations in which women face problems not directly related to their biology, for example gender-differentiated access to medical treatment. In recent years, some research concentrated on women's health turned to the risk of domestic violence. All kinds related to women health are required and welcomed.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Women health.

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission, Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special issue- Women health" should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Manuscript Due	June 23th, 2013
Publication Date	July, 2013

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at health@scirp.org

