

Special Issue on Human Geography

Call for Papers

Human Geography is a social science that is associated and deals with humans and their relationships with communities, cultures, economies, and interactions with the environment by studying their relations with and across locations. It is about where we live, how we live, and how we want to live. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Human Geography.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Geography. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Cultural geography
- Economic geography
- Environment and planning
- Feminist geography
- Geopolitics
- Human settlements
- Migration and detention
- Migration studies
- Population studies
- Regional geography
- Settlement geography
- Travel and tourism
- Rural geography
- Urban geography

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Human Geography” should be selected during your submission.
