

Special Issue on Anthropology and Development

Call for Papers

Anthropology is a discipline that comprehensively studies human beings from the perspective of biology and culture. Anthropology is usually divided into four branches: cultural anthropology, archaeology, linguistic anthropology and biological anthropology. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Anthropology and Development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Anthropology and Development. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Economic and political development
- Nature, science, and technology
- Political anthropology
- Anthropology and epidemiology
- Psychological anthropology
- Art, media, music, dance and film
- Anthropology and archaeology
- Cultural anthropology and linguistics

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Anthropology and Development” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:
