

Special Issue on Human Rights, Law and Ethics

Call for Papers

Human rights can be divided into civil and political rights, as well as economic, social and cultural rights. Human rights are mainly realized and embodied through domestic laws, and the sovereign state promotes the protection and respect of human rights by means of international human rights treaties. The emergence of international human rights law is the result of the internationalization of human rights protection. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Human Rights, Law and Ethics.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Rights, Law and Ethics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Legal rights & ethical responsibilities
- Human rights and democracy
- Policing, ethics and human rights
- International human rights law
- Human rights and business ethics
- Human rights and social justice
- Civil and political rights
- Environmental human rights: rights, ethics, and law

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Human Rights, Law and Ethics” should be selected during your submission.
