

Special Issue on Public Health Nutrition Initiatives

Call for Papers

Public Health Nutrition (PHN) is an area of concentration emphasizing the application of food and nutrition knowledge, policy, and research to the improvement of the health of populations.

Public Health Nutrition is the science and art of preventing disease, prolonging life and promoting health through the medium of nutrition. The aim for those working as public health nutritionists is for everyone to achieve greater health and well-being by making healthier food and nutrition-related choices.

We open this special issue to call for paper from worldwide researchers. If you are doing research on public health nutrition initiatives or related areas, and you have something to say on this issue, please do not hesitate to submit your manuscripts to us.

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal at Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Public Health Nutrition Initiatives” should be selected during your submission.
