

Special Issue on Environmental and Sustainable Science and Technology

Call for Papers

Sustainable development is a process for meeting human development goals while maintaining the ability of natural systems to continue to provide the natural resources and ecosystem services upon which the economy and society depend. Environmental sustainability concerns the natural environment and how it endures and remains diverse and productive. Since natural resources are derived from the environment, the state of air, water, and the climate are of particular concern. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of environmental and sustainable science and technology.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring environmental and sustainable science and technology. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- The population and sustainable development
- Urban ecological sustainable development
- Energy and sustainable development
- Natural resources sustainable development
- Water resources sustainable development
- Sustainable development strategy
- Environmental sustainable development planning

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue - Environmental and Sustainable Science and Technology” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	August 31st, 2020
