

Special Issue on Advances in Women's Health

Call for Papers

Women's health refers to health issues specific to women. They have different health concerns at different life stages. For example, younger women experience sexual development and struggle to keep fit and beautiful, while adult women may give birth and struggle to keep youth. During women's lifetime, lots of women suffer from all kinds of health issues such as gynecological disease, menopause, mental illness and so on. Some hot topics like breast cancer, infertility and depression which often appear on reports or news have become universal problems of women. As an important part of the mankind, further consideration and research on women's health seems necessary and significant.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring advances in women's health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Sexual development
- Keep fit and keep diet
- Beauty and cosmetic
- Pregnancy and childbirth
- Infertility
- Menstruation and menopause
- Female reproductive system diseases
- Mental illness of women
- Other health issues of women
- Precaution and treatment

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special Issue - Advances in Women's Health" should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Manuscript Due	October 22nd, 2014
Publication Date	December 2014

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at health@scirp.org