

Special Issue on Emergency Medicine Research

Call for Papers

Emergency Medicine is a medical specialty involving care for adult and pediatric patients with acute illnesses or injuries which require immediate medical attention. Emergency medicine physicians diagnose a variety of illnesses and undertake acute interventions to resuscitate and stabilize patients. It further encompasses an understanding of the development of pre-hospital and in-hospital emergency medical systems and the skills necessary for this development. As one of the most important research fields of human life, emergency medicine is of great attractions to researchers.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring Emergency Medicine Research. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Adult and pediatric patients immediate medical attention
- Hospital emergency departments
- Intensive-care unit
- Organizations of emergency medicine
- Education of emergency medicine
- Scope of emergency medicine

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal at Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue - Emergency Medicine Research” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Manuscript Due	August 28th, 2014
Publication Date	October 2014

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at ijcm@scirp.org