

Special Issue on Human Rights and Social Justice

Call for Papers

Human right is a powerful ideal. It is readily endorsed by people from many different cultural and ideological backgrounds and it is used rhetorically in support of a large number of different and sometimes conflicting causes. It has reason to believe that all humans have the right to access the same basic essentials no matter what their status, and social researcher works to help people achieve that right, promote social change and liberation of people to enhance well-being.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring human rights and social justice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Human rights
- Human trafficking
- Children welfare
- Women's rights
- War and conflict
- Social work and environment
- Social justice and development

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Human Rights and Social Justice” should be selected during your submission.
