

Special Issue on Human Rights & Social Justice Call for Papers

Human rights generally refer to universal human rights, regardless of their jurisdiction or other factors, such as race, nationality, or religion. Social justice reflects an equal social relationship between people. It includes fairness of existence, fairness of property rights and fairness of development. The premise of social equity is that everyone's human rights can be guaranteed. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Human Rights & Social Justice.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Rights & Social Justice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Social justice and development
- Environmental justice
- Economic justice
- Religion, terrorism and human rights
- Justice and efficiency
- The principles of social justice
- War and conflict
- Human rights vs national security
- Discrimination and freedom
- Politics, democracy and human rights

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Human Rights & Social Justice” should be selected during your submission.
