

Special Issue on
Organizational and Business Management
Call for Papers

The academic topic of "Organizational and Business Management" focuses on the study of principles, strategies, and practices involved in effectively managing and leading organizations to achieve their goals and objectives. It encompasses various aspects of managing people, processes, resources, and systems within an organizational context. Researchers in this field examine how organizations can develop and implement effective strategies, structure their operations, allocate resources, and adapt to the dynamic business environment. They explore the role of leadership, organizational culture, decision-making, and change management in shaping the performance and success of businesses.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Organizational and Business Management. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:
