

Special Issue on Globalization and National Sovereignty

Call for Papers

National sovereignty is the supreme power of a country to deal with its own affairs independently and manage its own country. Sovereignty is the special attribute of a country that distinguishes itself from other social groups, and is the inherent right of the state. Losing sovereignty will become a colony and a dependent country in other countries. In the process of economic globalization, the common problems faced by countries all over the world are becoming increasingly acute. Global problems are the adverse effects and consequences of global universality arising from the development of world civilization. Their solution is no longer a capability of a country or a few countries. It must rely on the joint efforts of all countries in the world to cooperate with each other and work together to solve it.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring globalization and national sovereignty. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Impact of globalization on national sovereignty
- Change of state sovereignty system
- Economic globalization and national sovereignty
- Military globalization and national sovereignty
- Development of the nation state
- Global governance theory
- Restriction and challenge of the national sovereignty principle
- New concept of national sovereignty

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Globalization and National Sovereignty” should be chosen during your submission.
