

Special Issue on Political Philosophy

Call for Papers

Political philosophy is the science of studying the nature of political relations and the general laws of their development, and the science of methods, principles, and systems of political theory. It is mainly concerned with political values and the nature of politics. It is a theory about general political issues and the philosophical basis of other political theories. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Political Philosophy.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Political Philosophy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Political theory
- Problems of political philosophy
- Political justice and democracy
- Law & political sciences
- Political institutional analysis
- Justice, freedom, and property
- Political values and beliefs
- Political attitudes
- Political conflict

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Political Philosophy” should be selected during your submission.
