

Special Issue on Social Psychology

Call for Papers

Social Psychology is the scientific study of how people's thoughts, feelings, and behaviors are influenced by the actual, imagined, or implied presence of others.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring social psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Social cognition
- Attitudes and attitude change
- Violence and aggression
- Prosocial behavior
- Prejudice and discrimination
- Self and social identity
- Group behavior
- Social influence
- Interpersonal relationships

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal at Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Social Psychology” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue timetable:
