

Special Issue on Adolescent, Behavior and Mental Health

Call for Papers

Adolescence is a unique and formative time. Whilst most adolescents have good mental health, multiple physical, emotional and social changes, including exposure to poverty, abuse, or violence, can make adolescents vulnerable to mental health problems. Promoting psychological well-being and protecting adolescents from adverse experiences and risk factors which may impact their potential to thrive are not only critical for their well-being during adolescence, but also for their physical and mental health in adulthood.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Adolescent, Behavior and Mental Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Psychological development
- Cognitive development
- Social development and relationships
- Emotional and behavioral problems
- Personality traits and mental health
- Parental involvement and family functioning
- Gender issues
- Self-identity and assessment
- Alcohol use and substance abuse

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Adolescent, Behavior and Mental Health” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	April 2nd, 2020
Publication Date	June 2020

For publishing inquiries, please feel free to contact the Editorial Assistant at submission.entrance1@scirp.org

Scientific Research
Open Access

Psychology
ISSN Online: 2152-7199

PSYCH Editorial Office
psych@scirp.org