

Special Issue on Business Economics

Call for Papers

Business Economics is a field in economics that deals with issues such as business organization, management, expansion and strategy. Studies might focus on the factors contributing to the diversity of organizational structures and the relationships of firms with labor, capital and product markets. Corporations make strategic decisions that can result in a profit or loss. Business economics studies how and why corporations expand, the impact of entrepreneurs, the interactions between corporations and the role of governments in regulation.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring business economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Diversity of organizational structures
- Enterprise profit maximization
- Relationships of firms with employees
- Corporate governance
- Capital and product markets
- Customer perception
- Business expansion

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue - Business Economics” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:
