

Special Issue on Microeconomics

Call for Papers

Microeconomics is a branch of economics that analyzes the market behavior of individuals and firms in an attempt to understand the decision-making process of firms and households. It aims to analyze the market mechanisms that establish relative prices among goods and services and allocate limited resources among alternative uses as well as market failure, where markets fail to produce efficient results, and describes the theoretical conditions needed for perfect competition.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Microeconomics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Consumer and producer surplus
- Costs of production
- Demand, supply, and equilibrium
- Economics of information
- Game theory
- Labor economics
- Market structure
- Measurement of elasticities
- Monopoly
- Oligopoly
- Perfect competition
- Theory of production
- Welfare economics

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Microeconomics” should be selected during your submission.
