Special Issue on Financial Economics

Call for Papers

Financial Economics is the interdisciplinary study that examines how individuals and institutions make decisions about resource allocation in financial markets. It analyzes the interplay between economic factors and financial markets to understand asset pricing, investor behavior, and the functioning of the financial system. By applying economic theories and quantitative methods, Financial Economics helps to explain and predict market trends, risk management strategies, and investment decisions.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Financial Economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Financial modeling
- Behavioral economics and finance
- Financial econometrics
- Investment analysis
- Financial markets and institutions
- Portfolio theory and risk management
- International economics and finance
- Financial decision making
- Public finance
- Asset pricing
- Corporate finance
- Market microstructure
- Financial regulation
- Monetary economics

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Financial Economics” should be chosen during your submission.
