Social psychology is the scientific study of individual behavior in a social context and seeks to understand the nature and causes of individual behavior in social situations. The way we perceive ourselves in relation to the rest of the world influences our behaviors and our beliefs. The opinions of others also affect our behavior and how we view ourselves. Social psychology is to deal with the way how our feelings, thoughts, beliefs, intentions and goals are constructed and how such psychological factors, in turn, influence our interactions with others.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Social Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Social behavior, cognition and attitudes
- Culture influences
- Emotional regulation
- Personality and social psychology
- Mental health and social care
- Interpersonal problems and communication study
- Social relationship and social identity
- Prosocial behavior
- Love and intimacy
- Parental influence
- Violence, conflicts and racism study
- Leadership and group behavior
- Substance abuse
- Socio-cultural factors

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Social Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.
