Special Issue on Ethnic and Racial Research

Call for Papers

Most countries in the world are multi-ethnic. Ethnicity denotes groups, such as Irish, Fijian, or Sioux, etc. that share a common identity-based ancestry, language, or culture. It is often based on religion, beliefs, and customs as well as memories of migration or colonization. To a certain extent, the nation is constructed artificially, and the political significance is stronger; while the race is more inclined to divide from the biological characteristics of human beings, and the emphasis of the two is not the same. In scientific analysis, it can be important to distinguish, however loosely, between race and ethnicity.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring ethnic and racial research. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Race, ethnicity and identity in America
- Racialism and racial discrimination
- Racial reproduction
- Ethnic differences
- Ethnic politics
- Ethnic minority groups
- Multi-nationality countries

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Ethnic and Racial Research” should be chosen during your submission.
