Special Issue on Aging Health and Nursing

Call for Papers

Healthy Ageing is defined as the process of developing and maintaining the functional ability that enables wellbeing in older age. Functional ability is about having the capabilities that enable all people to be and do what they have reason to value.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Aging Health and Nursing. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Aging and mental health
- Cognitive function with aging
- Stress and depression management
- Nutrition and healthy aging
- Aging and disease
- Clinical care in the elderly
- Aging and behavior
- Physical activity in the elderly
- Disability and impairment
- Functional balance and status
- Healthy aging
- Sleep disorders

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Aging Health and Nursing” should be chosen during your submission.
