Special Issue on Sports Psychology

Call for Papers

Sports psychology is based on three fields: competitive sports, public fitness and physical education. It outlines the global development trend of sports psychology in terms of research scope and practical application status in various fields. Its content includes skills learning, competition psychology, the significance of sports to human beings, motivation to engage in sports, and the relationship between athletes, coaches and athletes, athletes and spectators, psychological training and sports psychological treatment methods. With the help of psychological science research, we can ensure the scientific, reliable and solid nature of physical education teaching theory.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring sports psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Competitive sports psychology
- Exercise psychology
- Physical education psychology
- Sport motivation
- Psychological assessment of athletes
- Significance of sports to the public
- Psychological health guidance in sports
- Psychology and sport performance

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Sports Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.
