Special Issue on International Politics

Call for Papers

International politics major focuses on how power operates within and between states in the international arena. It is the study of interconnectedness of politics, economics and law on a global level, concerning topics such as human rights, ethnic conflict, international security, state sovereignty, nationalism, globalization, global finance, foreign and economic policy making.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on International Politics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- International relations, affairs and diplomacy
- Human rights and internet justice
- Conflict and development studies
- Terrorism
- National security and international security
- Globalization and foreign policy
- International political economy
- State sovereignty and nationalism
- Public and international law
- European studies

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – International Politics” should be chosen during your submission.
