Special Issue on

Environmental Assessment, Management and Policy

Call for Papers

Environmental Assessment is mainly aimed at the analysis, prediction and assessment of the possible adverse effects of human activities on the environment. The process of environmental assessment is to understand the interdependence and mutual restriction between ecological environment and human economic activities. Environmental management offers research and opinions on use and conservation of natural resources, protection of habitats and control of hazards, spanning the field of environmental management. With the deterioration of environment, the environmental policy can be deliberately taken to direct and oversee human activities and thereby prevent harmful effects on the biophysical environment and natural resources, as well as to make sure that the environment changes do not influence of human’s production, life and health.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring environmental assessment, management and policy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Environment impact assessment
- Environmental management system
- Environmental protection measures
- Environmental economy and policy
- Environmental laws and regulations
- Environmental monitor and assessment
- Environmental performance review

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Environmental Assessment, Management and Policy” should be chosen during your submission.
