Food economics is about food commodities trading, globalization and government policy. Food is also a good barometer of globalization; as incomes rise, more food is consumed, compounding the supply-and-demand formula.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Food Economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Food market and marketing
- Food policy and regulations
- Economic benefits
- Food service and management
- Food and consumer sciences
- Decision strategies
- Price analysis
- Supply chain and management
- Food and international study
- Trade and food security
- Food retail
- Cost-efficiency and cost analysis

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Food Economics” should be chosen during your submission.
