

Special Issue on Social Problems and Policy Call for Papers

Social problem is one of the important fields of sociological research. It affects the healthy life of social members, hinders the coordinated development of society, and causes a kind of social maladjustment phenomenon of general public concern. Social problems can be divided into political social problems, economic social problems, cultural social problems and social problems in people's daily life. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Social Problems and Policy.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Social Problems and Policy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Age and the life course
- Social inequality
- Social stratification
- Economic issues
- Work and occupations
- Social security and welfare
- Physical disability and social policy
- Risk, social policy and welfare
- Culture problems
- Environment problems
- Social problems theory

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Social Problems and Policy” should be selected during your submission.
