Special Issue on Sport Sociology

Call for Papers

Sport Sociology is a sub-discipline of sociology that studies sports as a social phenomenon. Sports sociologists critically examine the functions, impacts and roles that sports have on different societies. This interdisciplinary field often encompasses research in various other fields such as political science, history and anthropology. The goal of this issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Sport Sociology.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Sport Sociology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Sports Influence
- Sportsmanship
- Sports Competition
- Sports and Politics
- Sports and Economics
- Sports and Life
- Sports and Health

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Sport Sociology” should be selected during your submission.
