

Special Issue on Education and Social Change

Call for Papers

Education provides knowledge, training and skills, and inculcates new ideas and attitudes among young people. Many reforms started in the social sphere, but due to the lack of education of the people, the reforms were ineffective in practice. Therefore, education should bridge this gap. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Education and Social Change.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Education and Social Change. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- International education and social change
- Education and social policy
- Education and economic development
- Education and politics
- Developments in teacher assessment
- Education and social structure
- Equity and quality in education
- Socialization and education
- Cumulative change
- Role of education

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Education and Social Change” should be selected during your submission.
