

Special Issue on Applied Anthropology

Call for Papers

Applied Anthropology is a field that applies anthropological theories, methods, and insights to address real-world issues and challenges. Anthropologists in this discipline work closely with communities and organizations to understand and analyze social, cultural, and environmental dynamics in order to develop practical solutions and strategies. By bridging academic knowledge with practical application, applied anthropology aims to create positive and transformative changes in different societal contexts. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Applied Anthropology.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Applied Anthropology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Cultural anthropology
- Applied ethnobotany
- Urban anthropology
- Health anthropology
- Indigenous knowledge
- Educational anthropology
- Economic anthropology
- Historical archaeology
- Linguistic anthropology
- Forensic anthropology
- Medical anthropology
- Applied anthropology in environmental issues
- Conflict resolution and peacebuilding

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Applied Anthropology” should be selected during your submission.
