

Special Issue on Economics, Business and Management

Call for Papers

Economics is the study of how individuals, companies, governments, and countries choose to allocate resources to meet their needs, trying to determine how these groups should organize and coordinate their efforts to achieve maximum output. Business economics provides an analysis of the behavior of private companies operating in different types of market structures. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Economics, Business and Management.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Economics, Business and Management. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Economic growth and development
- Economics of organizations and industries
- Economics and marketing
- Strategic management
- Innovation economics
- Business economics and financial analysis
- Finance, investment and risk
- Global business and international business
- Transportation economics
- Economic and social policy
- Cost and production analysis

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Economics, Business and Management” should be selected during your submission.
