

Special Issue on Literary History

Call for Papers

Literary history focuses on questions of theory, method, interpretation, and development of literature. It canvasses a wide range of scholarly concerns, and reveals relations between literature development and time factors, as well as social factors concerning politics, economy, philosophy, religion, arts, etc. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in area of literary history.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on literary history. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Comparative literature
- Modern thought and literature
- Religion and literature
- Political and social dimensions of literature
- Development of literature
- Literature and arts
- Critical study of language
- Linguistic theory

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – literary history” should be chosen during your submission.
