Special Issue on Language and Education

Call for Papers

Language education refers to the process and practice of acquiring a second or foreign language. There are four main learning categories for language education: communicative competencies, proficiencies, cross-cultural experiences, and multiple literacies. The importance of meaningful language use at all stages in the acquisition of second or foreign language communicative skills has come to be recognized by researchers and teachers around the world.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Language and Education. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Learning and teaching strategies
- Language practices
- Assessment and evaluation
- Curriculum design
- Language development in early childhood education
- Parent interaction and language development
- Language and cognitive ability
- Language disorder and special education
- Information technology in teaching
- Multilingual interactions in classroom
