

Special Issue on Innovative Teaching and Learning

Call for Papers

Innovative Teaching and Learning is an academic topic focused on exploring, developing, and applying novel educational strategies with the aim of enhancing student engagement, understanding, and outcomes. This area covers a broad range of practices including the incorporation of technology in the classroom, flipped classrooms, project-based learning, as well as personalized and experiential learning approaches. The goal is to shift away from traditional lecture-based models to more interactive, student-centered methodologies that foster critical thinking, creativity, and real-world problem-solving skills. Research in this field examines the effectiveness of these innovative techniques and how they can be broadly implemented to improve educational systems worldwide.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Innovative Teaching and Learning. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:
