

Special Issue on Case Reports on Cardiology

Call for Papers

Case reports on cardiology involve the detailed examination and presentation of individual patient cases with cardiovascular issues. These reports aim to contribute to medical knowledge and improve the understanding, diagnosis, and management of cardiac diseases. A cardiology case report typically includes a patient's clinical history, diagnostic tests, treatment course, and outcomes. The report may also include a discussion of the relevant literature and provide insights into the challenges and opportunities faced in the management of the specific case. Case reports on cardiology may cover a wide range of topics, from rare conditions and complications to innovative treatments and techniques in cardiac care. Such reports provide the wider medical community with information and insights that can guide clinical decision-making in the future.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Case Reports on Cardiology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Coronary artery disease
- Valvular heart disease
- Heart failure
- Arrhythmias
- Cardiac surgery
- Congenital heart disease
- Cardiomyopathies
- Pulmonary hypertension
- Aortic and vascular diseases
- Cardiac imaging and diagnostics
- Innovative cardiac therapies
- Cardio-oncology
- Cardiovascular prevention and rehabilitation.

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Case Reports on Cardiology” should be chosen during your submission.
