

Special Issue on Health Care and Rehabilitation

Call for Papers

Health care is conventionally regarded as an important way to diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of disease, injury and other physical and mental impairments of human beings. While rehabilitation medicine which aims to restore and enhance functional ability of those disabilities, has been an important part of health care. People suffer from acute illness or injury such as stroke, spinal cord injuries, heart surgery and so on can get greatest help from health care. As health care and rehabilitation has such close relationship with human health, it's of great value and interest to researchers.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring health care and rehabilitation. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Classification of health care
- Contents and significance of health care
- Health care and economics
- Diagnosis and therapy of disease and injury
- Limits to health care
- Physical impairments or disabilities
- Mental disease and health care
- Physical medicine
- Rehabilitation

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue - Health Care and Rehabilitation” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	September 4th, 2014
Publication Date	November 2014

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at health@scirp.org