Special Issue on Health Economics

Call for Papers

Health economics is a branch of economics concerned with issues related to efficiency, effectiveness, value and behavior in the production and consumption of health and health care. A broad range of theoretical contributions, empirical studies and analyses of health policy with a health economic focus will be considered for publication.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring health economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Health care financing
- Health insurance and reimbursement
- Health economic evaluation
- Health services research
- Health policy analysis
- Health care management
- Importance of health care in developing countries

Authors should read over the journal’s Authors’ Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal at Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Health Economics” should be selected during your submission.
