

Special Issue on Primary Health Care

Call for Papers

Primary Health Care (PHC) refers to "essential health care" that is based on scientifically sound and socially acceptable methods and technology. This makes universal health care accessible to all individuals and families in a community. PHC initiatives allow for the full participation of community members in implementation and decision making. PHC is an approach to health beyond the traditional health care system that focuses on health equity-producing social policy. PHC includes all areas that play a role in health, such as access to health services, environment and lifestyle.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Primary Health Care. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Primary & community health care
- Primary health care and public health
- Primary care and family medicine
- Disease prevention, control and health promotion
- Health maintenance
- Chronic disease management
- Healthcare system and function
- Alternative medicine in primary health care
- Emergency healthcare
- health services, management and policy
- Safety work and risk management
- Role of primary health care in the COVID-19 pandemic
- Telehealth
- Socioeconomic effects

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special Issue – Primary Health Care" should be chosen during your submission.
