

Special Issue on Primary Care & Population Health

Call for Papers

Primary care is the day-to-day healthcare given by a health care provider. Typically this provider acts as the first contact and principal point of continuing care for patients within a healthcare system, and coordinates other specialist care that the patient may need. Population health has been defined as "the health outcomes of a group of individuals, including the distribution of such outcomes within the group". It is an approach to health that aims to improve the health of an entire human population.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Primary Care & Population Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Primary care and public health
- Primary health care and disasters
- Healthcare management and policy
- E-health
- Health informatics
- Health promotion
- Disease control and prevention
- Global health and population
- Primary care epidemiology
- Population health interventions
- Healthcare reform
- Health care system
- Social determinants of health
- Health economics
- Risk factors
- Environmental health
- Demographic factors
- Health geography
- Community-oriented primary care
- Family medicine and primary care
- Health communication
- Mental health
- Sexual and reproductive Health
- Society, culture and health
- Primary care response to COVID-19

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Primary Care & Population Health” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	June 16th, 2022
Publication Date	August 2022

For publishing inquiries, please feel free to contact the Editorial Assistant at submission.entrance1@scirp.org

Health Editorial Office
health@scirp.org