

Special Issue on Health Behavior and Health Promotion

Call for Papers

Health behavior is an action taken by a person to maintain, attain, or regain good health and to prevent illness. Health behavior reflects a person's health beliefs. Some common health behaviors are exercising regularly, eating a balanced diet, and obtaining necessary inoculations. Health promotion enables people to increase control over their own health. It covers a wide range of social and environmental interventions that are designed to benefit and protect individual people's health and quality of life by addressing and preventing the root causes of ill health, not just focusing on treatment and cure.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Health Behavior and Health Promotion. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Health behaviors and public health
- Interventions and health promotion
- Disease prevention
- Health education
- Health policy
- Epidemiology and biostatistics
- Qualitative research methods
- Environmental factors in health promotion
- Community-based health promotion
- Behavior change and healthy life
- Nutrition, physical activity and health
- Prevention and control of addictive behaviors
- Health risk behaviors
- Mental health promotion
- Family and adolescent health
- Obesity and weight management
- Sexual behavior and health
- Health behaviors during the COVID-19
- Health disparities
- Socio-cultural determinants of health behavior

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Health Behavior and Health Promotion” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	August 8th, 2022
Publication Date	October 2022

For publishing inquiries, please feel free to contact the Editorial Assistant at submission.entrance1@scirp.org

Health Editorial Office
health@scirp.org