Special Issue on Child Health, Care and Development

Call for Papers

Child health is the medical care of neonates and children up to adolescence, usually in an in-patient hospital or day-clinic. Being a support to children and their families is one component of direct nursing care. Awareness of the concerns of children and parents, being present physically at times of stress and implementing strategies to help children and family members cope are all part of the work. Child development entails the biological, psychological and emotional changes that occur in human beings between birth and the conclusion of adolescence.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Child Health, Care and Development. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Children's health care
- Pediatric surgery
- Pediatrics and internal medicine
- Child nutrition
- Obesity and weight problems
- Child development
- Child mental health
- Child psychiatry
- Behavioral problems
- Family and childhood development
- Child safety and injury prevention
- Maternal and child health
- Child disability and special needs
- Child vaccination and disease prevention
- Infection, immunity, and inflammation
- Child health disparities
- Child environmental health
- Child public health
- Health policy

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – *Child Health, Care and Development” should be chosen during your submission.
