Special Issue on Health Policy and Management

Call for Papers

The study of health policy and management involves developing, implementing, and evaluating policies and strategies that shape the healthcare system and influence the delivery of healthcare. This encompasses a range of activities, including strategic planning, quality improvement, healthcare operations management, and healthcare informatics.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Health Policy and Management. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Disease prevention
- Health leadership
- Health economics and policy
- Health care financing and reform
- Health insurance
- Health system management
- Health services research and evaluation
- Health informatics and technology
- Global health policy and management
- Health equity and disparities
- Pharmaceutical policy and management
- Integrated care and chronic disease management
- Mental health policy and management
- Public health policy and management
- Emergency preparedness and response
- Tobacco control
- Vaccination policy
- COVID-19 and health policy

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Health Policy and Management” should be chosen during your submission.
