Special Issue on COVID-19 and Public Health

Call for Papers

"COVID-19 and Public Health" is an academic topic that focuses on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on public health at both the individual and population levels. It involves the study of various aspects related to the virus, its transmission, prevention, and the strategies implemented to control and mitigate its spread. Through the study of COVID-19 and Public Health, researchers seek to gather knowledge and evidence-based practices that can inform public health responses to current and future pandemics, with the ultimate goal of safeguarding the health and well-being of communities and populations worldwide.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on COVID-19 and Public Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Epidemiology of COVID-19
- Transmission dynamics and modeling
