

Special Issue on Sexual and Reproductive Health

Call for Papers

"Sexual and Reproductive Health" is a critical area of public health that encompasses the well-being of individuals in relation to sexuality, fertility, and childbirth. It includes a wide spectrum of topics such as safe sexual practices, contraception, sexually transmitted infections (STIs), fertility treatment options, prenatal and maternity care, and prevention and treatment of reproductive cancers. This field emphasizes the importance of informed, consensual, and safe sexual experiences, the right to access quality reproductive healthcare services, and comprehensive sexuality education. By addressing these aspects, the objective is to enhance life quality, promote responsible behaviors, ensure reproductive rights, and reduce associated health risks. Effective sexual and reproductive health strategies are pivotal in achieving broader public health goals, gender equality, and sustainable development outcomes.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Sexual and Reproductive Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Sexual dysfunction & disorders
- Sexual health & disease prevention
- Reproductive genetics
- Reproductive health care
- Contraception and family planning
- Sexually transmitted infections prevention and management
- HIV prevention, testing, and treatment
- Adolescent sexual and reproductive health
- Maternal and child health
- Infertility and assisted reproductive technologies
- Gender and reproductive health disparities
