

Special Issue on Health Services and Policy

Call for Papers

Health Services and Policy is an interdisciplinary field that examines the organization, delivery, and financing of healthcare services. It focuses on evaluating health policies, systems, and programs to improve health outcomes and access to care. Key areas of research include healthcare quality, cost-effectiveness, health equity, and the impact of regulations on public health. This field aims to inform policymakers, healthcare providers, and stakeholders to make evidence-based decisions that enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of health systems.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Health Services and Policy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Public health policy and services
- Healthcare management and administration
- Primary care health service
- Global health policy and services
- Community health and prevention
- Mental health services
- Behavioral health services research
- Health economics and financing
- Healthcare informatics and data analytics
- Healthcare technology and innovation
- Health insurance and coverage
- Health system reform and innovation
- Healthcare quality and safety
