Special Issue on Otolaryngology Research

Call for Papers

Otolaryngology research is an academic topic that focuses on the study of disorders and conditions related to the ear, nose, and throat (ENT). It covers a wide range of areas, including audiology, rhinology, laryngology, and head and neck surgery. Researchers in otolaryngology investigate the mechanisms, diagnosis, and treatment of various ENT disorders, such as hearing loss, sinusitis, voice disorders, sleep apnea, and head and neck cancers. The goal is to enhance understanding, develop innovative approaches, and improve patient care in the field of otolaryngology.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Otolaryngology Research. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Allergy and immunology
- Audiology and hearing disorders
- Rhinology and sinus diseases
- Laryngology and voice disorders
- Otology and neurotology
- Facial plastic and reconstructive surgery
- Pediatric otolaryngology
- Sleep medicine and sleep apnea
- Swallowing and swallowing disorders
- Allergy and immunology related to ENT disorders
- Vestibular and balance disorders
- Speech and language pathology in otolaryngology
- Ototoxicity and hearing loss
- Tinnitus and treatment options
