Special Issue on Social History

Call for Papers

Social history is the use of sociological theories and methods to study the overall social structure and its movements, social organization and its movements, social behavior and social psychology in history. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Social History.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Social History. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Historical demography
- Social psychology in history
- Ethnic history
- Labor history
- Women's history
- Gender history
- History of the family
- History of education
- Political history
- Cultural history
- Social history theory
- Intellectual history

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Social History” should be selected during your submission.
